1. Read the following text and answer the questions below. (8 points)

Human beings have always needed somewhere safe and comfortable to live – somewhere away from the world outside. Our ancient ancestors often used caves. Later, they learned to build houses and they designed them to keep out wild animals and bad weather.

Think of the Masai people of East Africa. Long ago, they began building their houses together in circles. They were very simple, but each joined the next, and together they became a strong wall. At night, they brought their cows and goats into the center, safe from dangerous animals. Some Masai have continued living in communities like this until today.

In the past, people also found natural ways to protect themselves from difficult climate. In cold, wet places, traditional houses were often low with thick walls and small windows that faced away from the wind and rain. In the hot, dry Middle East, the thick, white walls of traditional houses protected people from the sun's heat.
